

It is our opinion that the current law in place is the best thing to happen for our privacy since the invention of the telephone. prior to signing up we easily received ten or more solicitor calls on a daily basis...even on Sundays. Now we may receive one or two a week. The worst thing that could happen would be to allow the incessant invasion of privacy to start again by lessening the current legislation. Legitimate business can reach out to customers using other less obtrusive methods (I am a business owner myself).
